Write in the Heavens.

One day I wrote her name upon the strand,
But came the waves and washed it away;
Again I wrote it with a sacred hand,
But came the tide and made my pains his prey.
"Vain man," said she, "that dost in vain assay
A mortal thing so to immortalize,
For I myself shall like to this decay,
And like my name be wiped out likewise."
"Not so," quoth I; "let baser things devise
To die in dust; but you shall live by fame;
My verse your virtues rare shall eternize,
And in the heavens write your glorious name.
Where, when as death shall all the world subdue,

Told in Song.

This is what the Cincinnati Enquirer says, by way of variety:
The courtship of Nicholas Longworth and Alice Roosevelt will be told in an orchestral composition to be played by the orchestra at Robinson's Opera House next week. The composition is by Herman Belstedt, the leader of the orchestra at that theatre. Musically it describes the trip of the Cincinnati congressman and his bride to across the Pacific, to the imperial palace in Peking, China, and then back again to Washington, where the wedding ceremony is depicted.

In the course of the musical narrative appropriate melodies like "Alice, Where Art Thou?" "Love's Old Sweet Song," the wedding march and patriotic melodies are introduced. After the festivities there is a pause, showing the lapse of several years, and then the orchestra softly plays a lullaby, with which the composition ends. Mr. Belstedt has called it "The Wooing of Alice and Nick."

Major and Mrs. James H. Dooley have issued cards for a reception, to be given February twentieth, from 9 to 11 o'clock.

THE COLISEUM BY MOONLIGHT

By LORD BYRON.

Other selections from this author, his portrait, autograph and biographical sketch, have already been printed in this series.

The Coliseum is the name given to an amphitheatre in Rome which was begun by the Emperor Vespasian and finished by his son Titus. A large part of the structure still exists, some of the wall being entire. It is elliptical in shape, is 97 feet long, 512 feet wide, and is pierced with eighty vaulted openings in the ground story, over which are three other stories, the whole rising to a height of 153 feet. The central portion of it, called the arena, is 253 feet by 133. On this arena gladiators fought each other to death. There also men contended with wild beasts, and the chariot races took place. The arena was flooded when naval shows were given. Coliseum had seats for 50,000 spectators. A system of awnings was provided for shading the entire interior. The interior is of brick and is covered by a floor of stone and a sort of limestone. The following is from "Manfred," a Dramatic Poem, Act III, Scene 4. Manfred is looking at the Coliseum from the lonely tower of his castle.

THE stars are forth, the moon above the tops
Of the snow-shining mountains.—Beautiful!
I linger yet with Nature, for the night
Hath been to me a more familiar face
Than that of man; and in her starry shade
Of dim and solitary loveliness
I learned the language of another world.
I do remember me, that in my youth,
When I was wandering—upon such a night—
I stood within the Coliseum's wall,
Midst the chief relics of almighty Rome;
The trees which grew along the broken arches
Waved dark in the blue midnight, and the stars
Shone through the rents of ruin; from afar
The watch-dog bayed beyond the Tiber; and
More near, from out the Caesars' palace came
The owl's long cry, and, interruptedly,
Of distant sentinels the fitful song.
Begun and died upon the gentle wind.
Some cypresses beyond the time-worn breach
Appeared to skirt the horizon, yet they stood
Within a bowshot—where the Caesars dwelt.
And dwell the timeless birds of night, amidst
A grove which springs through leveled battlements,
And twines its roots with the imperial hearths.
It usurps the laurel's place of growth—
But the gladiators' bloody Circus stands,
A noble wreck in ruinous perfection,
While Caesar's chambers and the Augustan halls
Grovel on earth in indistinct decay—
And thou didst shine, thou rolling moon, upon
All this, and cast a wide and tender light
Which softened down the hoar austerity
Of rugged desolation, and filled up,
As 'twere anew, the gaps of centuries,
Leaving that beautiful which still was so,
And making that which was not, till the place
Became religion, and the heart ran o'er
With silent worship of the great of old!
The dead, but sceptered sovereigns, who still rule
Our spirits from their urns.

several new annual members. An anonymous contribution, equivalent to a life membership fee, was also made. The city laws and constitution were read and adopted and the details of organization completed. It was decided that the fund raised should be given in trust to the University of Virginia, and that the interest on this principal should be under the control of the Board of the Home for Needy Confederate Women, to be used for the benefit of the Home.

When the home ceased to exist, the money is to be used to establish a perpetual scholarship at the University of Virginia, as a fitting memorial to Mr. D. Lee Powell and Mr. John H. Powell. A letter from Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, president of the University, was read, in which he expressed his approval of the plan and said that he would refer the matter to the board of visitors at the earliest opportunity. Hereafter the association will meet regularly at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the first and third Fridays of each month, in the school-room in No. 3 East Grace Street.

TWELVE MONTHS FOR STEALING BIBLE

Colored Man Claiming to Be a Preacher, Jailed for Breaking Into Church.

A peculiar case came to an end in the Hustings Court yesterday when a jury gave the "Rev." William Baker, colored, a one-year's term in the city jail for stealing a Bible and a hymn book.

Baker broke into the Bethlehem Methodist Church, colored, and carried off a valuable copy of the Holy Scriptures, and also the pulpit hymn book.

He was caught and arraigned before Justice Crutchfield, and the evidence being dead against him the police justice sent Baker on to the grand jury. Indictment and the trial of yesterday followed and now the Bible stealer is in the city jail, there to remain for a period of twelve months.

Baker claimed to be a minister of the Gospel, but his evidence to support the claim was exceedingly weak.

MAYOR WRITES LETTER TO BOARD

He Points Out How He and Clerk August Do Not Altogether Agree.

PLEASANTLY SNAPPY SPAT

Recommendation for Appointment of Assistant City Attorney Gets Before Board.

Mayor McCarthy is keeping busy. Yesterday he addressed a letter to the Board of Aldermen, which he will hand to that body at a meeting to be held next Tuesday night. The letter will be accompanied by a copy of his special message sent to the Common Council on the 3d of February, and published in The Times-Dispatch February 4th, recommending the appointment of an assistant to the city attorney.

As the letter below fully explains, there was a little discussion between the Mayor and Clerk of Council Ben. T. August.

The clerk took the ground that the message of February 3d, having been delivered to the Common Council, and by that body referred to the Committee on Ordinances, Charter and Reform, it was out of the clerk's possession, and he had no right to deliver it or a copy of it to the Board of Aldermen. As shown in the letter, which will be sent to the Board, the Mayor takes a different view. The discussion between the Mayor and the clerk was very pleasant—pleasantly snappy. The trouble was simply a difference of opinion as to the legal mode of procedure.

The Mayor's Letter.

Here is the Mayor's letter, which will be read to the Board next Tuesday evening: To the Honorable, the Board of Aldermen of the City of Richmond:

Gentlemen.—On the 3d of February I addressed a communication to the Council of the city of Richmond, calling attention to the necessity for the election, or appointment, of an assistant to the city attorney. The message was received by the Common Council on Monday, February 5th, and was referred to the Committee on Ordinances, Charter and Reform, and, therefore, may never reach you. The city clerk, who is the clerk of both branches of the Council, informs me that he will obey the order of the Common Council referring the message, and that he will not forward it to the Board. This being the case, I am compelled to forward you with this copy of the message referred to, in order that I may comply with section 2 of chapter 3 of the city ordinances, and with section 10 of chapter 2 of the city charter, both of which require such communications to be sent to the City Council, and not to either branch.

Though I take this means of communicating to your branch of the Council this message, I do not by that act admit, but rather protest against, the right of the clerk or the other branch to retain the message without reference to the Board, or to refer it without a joint resolution concurred in by the Board. In this regard I am supported by the present city attorney and by his predecessor in that office.

I have the honor to be, Very respectfully, etc., (Signed) CARLTON MCCARTHY, Mayor.

PUT ON BEST CLOTHES TO SHOOT HIMSELF

Youth of Eighteen Dies From Suicidal Shooting.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) NEWPORT NEWS, Va., February 9.—Ralph Alexander, about eighteen years old, died to-night at the home of his brother-in-law, H. D. Brinkley, from the effects of a pistol wound in his left breast.

The ball penetrated the body just below the heart, and was extracted by the physicians from the youth's back. How he received the wound is a matter of doubt. Up to two months ago the young man worked as messenger boy in Norfolk, but came here to work in the shipyard. He left his home yesterday usual, but it was found that he had put on his best clothing, and had carried off a revolver belonging to his brother-in-law. To-day he walked into his sister's residence and informed her that he had shot himself. He said the deed was done in a vacant house on Twenty-eighth Street some time last night. He told where the pistol could be found, and also a note to his sister. In the note Alexander told his sister he knew his faults, but could not correct them.

Newspaper Tributes.

On the demise of the late Henry Clay Payne, a concern in New York gathered from the papers published throughout the United States 4,655 newspaper stories of the life and career of the deceased.

These items were carefully mounted on Irish linen leaves and bound in 6 volumes, 400 pages to the book. A cover of genuine seal was appropriately lettered in gold and the entire material, representing the work of many people for several months, has just been delivered to Mrs. Payne at
